Sports in Great Britain (чтение и перевод)

English sports exist in many different forms: athletic games for recreation, competitive sports for huge crowds of people, etc. There are also so called spectator sports in England. In such games the number of spectators is greater than the number of players. Participant sports attract crowds of people on special occasions.

Cricket is a very popular English game. There are also many other games originated from England. Many countries accepted these traditional English sports.

Cricket is a very slow game. Spectators dropped asleep for half an hour during a game may always be excused. At present cricket doesn't make any progress in its popularity.

Football is a very popular game in England. Millions of spectators attend football matches every year. These matches are organized by the English Football league. The Cup Final on the Empire Stadium in a London suburb is the greatest event in England.

The history of English rugby begins in the 19th century. Rugby football is to be played with egg-shaped balls. These balls can be thrown and carried.

Many English people play tennis and golf. Golf is typical for the countryside. The golf players drive a ball towards into different halls. For this purpose the players use special golf clubs.

There are very many tennis clubs in England. There are many tennis courts in English publish parks of every town. Wimbledon is famous for World championship tennis matches.
